

Reading Ears

By Royce Alger

Hopefully, the title of this particular article has captured your attention. I told the editor of this magazine I wanted to be a little off center. It has always been my motivation to entertain and enhance our own appreciation for this fine sport. I told him I would not delve into the redundant issues of motivation and what a lad needs to do to "make it". I personally will slit both wrists and an ankle if I have to read one more article from some Ph.D. telling me about carbohydrate to protein ratios. It has been my own contention that athletes, coaches and fans want to read about real people and actual experiences. With that said, I will continue with my "Reading Ears" article!
