Beat the Streets New York will participate in the inaugural Beat the Streets National Duals on Thursday, June 30 at Hope Academy Sports Complex in Chicago. The event will see nine teams from Beat the Streets chapters across the country come together for fellowship and friendly competition.

Student-athletes will have three days of technique camp, enrichment and sightseeing before the competition day. BTSNY girls coach Becka Leathers will serve as a clinician along with Haley Augello, Kyven Gadson, Erin Golston, Indiana head coach Angel Escobedo and Illinois assistant coach Ed Ruth.

BTSNY will have 28 high school (18 boys, 10 girls) and six junior league (four boys, two girls) student-athletes compete. BTSNY student-athletes will also make two college visits to Ohio State University and Pennsylvania State University on their way to and from Chicago, respectively. During these visits, student-athletes will tour the campuses and practice at each school's wrestling facility.

The duals will be broadcasted on rokfin.com/ILMatmen. To learn more about the Beat the Streets National Duals, visit beatthestreets.org.
