Pac-12 Wrestler of the Week (Feb. 4, 2025)

Ethan Stiles, R-Fr., Oregon State (Chicago, Ill.)

Oregon State's Ethan Stiles was named Pac-12 Wrestler of the Week, the Conference office announced Tuesday morning.

It's the second Conference weekly honor of the season for Stiles, who notably becomes the Pac-12 wrestler this season to win the award at two different weight classes.

After beginning the season at 157 pounds, the redshirt freshman competed at 149 this past weekend across Oregon State's dual meets against Stanford (Friday, Jan. 31) and Cal State Bakersfield (Feb. 2). Stiles earned a pair of major decision victories taking down No. 7 Jaden Abas from Stanford (18-8) before earning an 8-1 win over Bakersfield's Brock Rogers.

The Chicago native has now rattled off two-straight wins over top-10 opponents, having previously defeated then-No. 10 Jord Williams of Little Rock on Jan. 24.

ALSO NOMINATED: Gerrit Nijenhuis, Cal State Bakersfield

- Last week's Pac-12 Wrestler of the Week earned his fourth-straight match victory with a win over TJ McDonnell (184 pounds) of Oregon State this past Sunday. He needed just 98 seconds for his first pin of the season.

ALSO NOMINATED: Cash Stewart, Cal Poly

- Stewart secured a victory at 174 pounds over Luke Odom from Southern Illinois University Edwardsville (SIUE), using a cradle to secure a pin just 4:21 into the match.
